

Act 3 Scene 2 – Quote Quest

- ❖ Complete the grid below.
- ❖ In some cases you will need to find the quotation that matches with the modern day translation; in other cases you will need to write in what you think the quotation means.
- ❖ The first one has been done for you.

Quotation	Translation
'Nought's had, all's spent'	Nothing's gained, everything's lost
'How now, my lord, why do you keep all alone Of sorriest fancies your companions making ...'
	We have started all of this trouble, but it is not yet finished.
	We would be better off with the dead, at least they are in peace.
'O, full of scorpions is my mind, dear wife!'
	It is better that you don't know what is about to happen until afterwards, and then you can be happy about it.
